

Teachers' Notes

Jungle survivors

You will need:

one copy of the newspaper article per student; one set of role cards for each pair of students

- Give each student a copy of the newspaper cutting and check they have understood the main points.
- Divide the class into two groups and give one group Reporter role cards and the other Survivor role cards. (If there is an odd number of students, include an extra.) Students prepare questions and answers for the role play, following the instructions on the card.
- Rearrange the class so that each reporter can interview a survivor individually. The reporters will need to take brief notes at this stage, in order to report back later.
- At the end of the interviews, rearrange the class so that each reporter is sitting with another reporter who was not his/her original partner. Place each survivor with another survivor who was not his/her original partner.
- The reporters and survivors tell their new partners what was said in their interviews, using reported questions and statements.
- The reporters write the article for the Daily Planet, while the survivors write a letter to a member of their family telling them about the interview.

Cutting Edge

Christopher Redson, Frances Eales, Peter Moor, Sarah Cunningham

Teachers around the world trust Cutting Edge to deliver a comprehensive, practical language syllabus and an impressive range of teaching resources.

From beginners to advanced level, students learn to communicate effectively, accurately and confidently through solid grammar work, a focus on high-frequency vocabulary and regular well-structured speaking tasks.

This complete teaching package includes videos, tests, and website, to give teachers all the support they need.

This activity is taken from Cutting Edge Intermediate Teachers' Resource Book
ISBN 0582302080

For more information, please ask your local Longman office or visit:
<http://eltcatalogue.pearson.com/>

Longman.com

