AN UNUSUAL JOB

1 Read the text and decide if Tom:

- a. loves his job b. likes his job
 c. doesn't like his job d. hates his job

Tom N'Boto works in one of the many national parks in Kenya. Tom tells us what he does at work at the start of his day.

Interviewer: Tom, what time do you start work?

Tom: Well, I start work very early — at 5:30 in the morning.

Interviewer: That is early! Why don't you start later?

Tom: Well...our job is to look after the animals. Most of them get up when the sun comes up — so we do, too.

Interviewer: Do you have a problem with getting up so early?

Tom: No, not at all. I can see all the animals coming to drink at the lake. It's a beautiful sight. I never get tired of it. I'm very happy I can see them all every day.

Interviewer: Can you touch them?

Tom: No, not usually, They're wild animals. Sometimes I can touch a baby, but its mother usually comes over and stands in between us.

> Writing

3 Imagine that you are the writer of the article. Continue the interview with Tom. First, write some questions and answers. Think of some of these things:

- what hours Tom works, and who Tom works with
- what animals he sees
- what the animals eat and drink; what they do; where they sleep
