Good luck

There was a farmer who had an old horse. One day, the horse escaped and the farmer's neighbors told him they were sorry about his bad luck. But the farmer replied, "Bad luck? Good luck? Who knows?"

A week later, the horse returned with a group of wild horses and now the neighbors said the farmer was lucky. His reply was, "Bad luck? Good luck? Who knows?"

The next week, the farmer's son was riding one of the wild horses, when he fell off and broke his leg. Everyone thought this was very bad luck. But the farmer said, "Bad luck? Good luck? Who knows?"

Some weeks later, a war began and the army came to look for soldiers to fight. When they saw the farmer's son with his broken leg, they left him in the village. Now was that good luck or bad luck? Who knows?
