I had an accident when I was at school and it changed my life dramatically. I injured my back very badly. I was 16 when the accident happened and now I'm 20. Returning to a new life after my accident was not easy. A lot of things changed, but a lot stayed the same, too. Physically, of course, things were different because I couldn't walk, but I still enjoyed going out and doing things.

Now I'm at university studying architecture and I would like to establish my independence. However, it's impossible to find a place to live that has everything I need, so I have to live at home with my parents. My parents have been helpful. Together, we've found solutions to many problems. I've learned to drive and this has given me a lot more independence. I've kept most of the friends I had before the accident. It's hard to meet new people because you have to give them time to learn about you. You also have to be honest.

For exercise, I play wheelchair basketball. This is fun and I've met some nice people. I read a lot about architecture and I also like reading fantasy books. The most frustrating thing is the time it takes me to do things, but I prefer to do things myself than depend on other people.

- _____ 1. When he was 16, he had a serious back injury.
- _____ 2. He prefers living with his family to living alone.
