Was I going too fast
or a little too slow?
I was looking out the window,
and I just don’t know.
I must have turned the steering wheel
a little too far when I drove into the bumper of that luxury car.

Oh no!

How awful!
What a terrible day!
I’m sorry to hear that.
Are you OK?

(CHORUS)

Wheels around the World
are waiting here with your car.
Pick it up.
Turn it on.
Play the radio.
Wheels around the World—
“helping you to go far.”

You can drive anywhere.
Buckle up and go.

Did I hit the red sedan,
or did it hit me?
I was talking on the cell phone
in my SUV.
Nothing was broken,
and no one was hurt,

but I did spill some coffee
on my favorite shirt.

Oh no!

Thank goodness
you’re still alive!
I’m so happy that you survived.

(CHORUS)

What were you doing when you hit that tree?
I was racing down the mountain, and the brakes failed me.
How did it happen? Was the road still wet?
Well, there might have been a danger sign,
but I forget.
The hood popped open and the door fell off.
The headlights blinked and the engine coughed.
The side-view mirror had a terrible crack.
The gearshift broke. Can I bring the car back?

Oh no!

Thank goodness
you’re still alive!
I’m so happy that
you survived.

(CHORUS)
